Guidelines for Contributors to *Huntia

The Hunt Institute's scholarly journal of botanical history, Huntia, publishes articles on all aspects of the history of botany, including exploration, art, literature, biography, iconography and bibliography. The journal is published irregularly in one or more numbers per volume of approximately 200 pages by Hunt Institute. External contributions to Huntia are welcomed. Page charges have been eliminated. All manuscripts are subject to external peer review.

Submissions

Double-space all material, including abstract, epigraphs, acknowledgments, reference lists, captions, tables and appendixes. Do not justify right margin or use proportional spacing. Include a one-paragraph abstract. The order and headings of sections within the rest of the manuscript are at the author's discretion. At end of text, provide author's/authors' current mailing and emailing address(es) (but not occupations, titles or biographical notes).

Manuscripts should be submitted with the understanding that copyright transfer is required for publication in Huntia, except for public-domain works. Material that is under consideration for publication or that has been published elsewhere is not eligible to be published in Huntia. All manuscripts are subject to peer review and may be returned to contributors with suggestions for revision. The final decision to accept or decline a manuscript is the responsibility of the Editor.

Submit one copy of manuscript via email attachment or via mail to the Editor at the address given above.

Please note that books for announcement or review should be sent to Charlotte Tancin, Book Reviews and Announcements Editor (ctancin@cmu.edu, 412-268-7301).

Proofs & Reprints

Authors receive first proofs (already paged) only; corrected proofs are to be returned to the Editor. Authors receive one complimentary copy of the journal. We no longer offer reprints. The Editor sends authors print-quality PDFs of their articles on CDs.

Page Charges

We no longer impose page charges.

Footnotes and Endnotes

Footnotes should not be used; use in-text citations. Endnotes are discouraged but are permitted if they present necessary or helpful supplementary information that would be awkward to incorporate in the text. Endnotes must not be used, however, merely for attributive citations.

Taxonomy

Binomials are italic. The generic name should be spelled out in a title and on its first mention in the text; it can be abbreviated later to a capital letter followed by a period unless it is the first word of a sentence. The generic name is always italicized even if it is used without the epithet. Specific epithets should not stand alone (except in special circumstances, such as tables of species of a single genus) and are never abbreviated. The authority should be spelled out at least once in text. Confirm the author's name with Brummitt and Powell's Authors of Plant Names (1992).

In-Text Citations

Authors should cite sources in text in the name-year style. The order of elements for in-text citations is, in parentheses: Author's/authors' last name(s) + date(s) + volume number* + part number* + page number(s) + plate(s)* + figure(s)* + table(s)* (*optional; include if appropriate). Page numbers must be provided if citation is for a direct quotation; page numbers are optional in other cases.

Two authors

(Jones and Brown 1970)

Two different authors with the same last name

(P. Brown 1961), (J. Brown 1994)

Three or more authors

(Schmutz et al. 1968)

Multiple in-text citations

(Jones and Brown 1970; Abbey 1980) or (Jones 1960, 1980; Smith 1973)

Two or more works by same author(s)

Use "a," "b," etc. with dates (e.g., 1960a, 1960b) to distinguish between works written by the same author or authors in the same year, e.g., (Jones 1960a) or (Jones and Brown 1960a, b, c).

Unpublished data

(Jones, unpubl.) or (Jones, unpubl. data)

In preparation/In press

(Jones, in prep.) or (Jones, in press)

Personal communication/Personal observation

"Personal communication" refers to a communication to the present author from someone else, e.g., (Jones, pers. comm.) or (Jones, pers. obs.).

Work in another source (e.g., chapter in book)

Corresponding bibliographic entry should identify source as being published in another source, e.g., (Jones 1980).

Page numbers cited

(Bessey 1897a, pp. 168–169)

(Bessey 1894a, p. 240; 1897a, pp. 171–172)

Volumes and page numbers cited

(Garcia 1987, 2:168, 3:119–123)

(Kew, Director's Correspondence, 119:553; 160:36–58, 143)

Volumes and plate numbers cited
(Hedwig 1787–1792, 2: pl. 20)

Figure cited
(Godard 1937, p. 274, fig. 113)

Plate cited
(Alvi and Rahman 1968, pl. 24)

References

Full bibliographic citations for all published works cited in text should be given in a “Bibliography,” “Literature Cited” or “References” section in alphabetical order by first author’s surname. The choice of heading is the author’s decision. Verify all entries against original sources, especially journal titles, accents and diacritical marks and foreign spelling. Generally, cite the work actually used. Additional information about date(s) of earlier or later (maybe facsimile) editions can be given parenthetically at the end of the citation, as may be useful. Reprintings generally are not worth noting, so long as nothing has been changed from the original printing of that edition—just cite the date of the original printing. Binomials and titles of books and periodicals are italicized in running text. In references, titles of books or periodicals are plain text. If a scientific name occurs in a book, chapter or article title, it is italicized.

Name(s) of author(s)

Invert the name of the first author. Use initials for the first and middle names of authors to avoid any problems with the consistent rendering of full names. Use periods with initials. Add one space between first and middle initials, e.g., A. B. Smith, throughout main text and in reference citations. There is no comma after the initials when citing two-author publications, e.g., Stafleu, F. A. and R. S. Cowan. Use and, not &, when two or more authors are named, e.g., Farr, E. A., J. A. Leussink and F. A. Stafleu. Give names of all authors; do not use et al. When authors’ names are repeated in a reference list, cite all names in all instances. Do not use dashes or Ibid.

Book citations

Include date, place of publication and publisher, but not page numbers. Indicate clarifying state or country information for city of publication if needed, e.g., Cambridge, Mass. (i.e., not Cambridge, England); in such cases, use standard, not postal, abbreviations for American states. The place of publication should be an English spelling, even if the book title is Latin or German, etc. The other version can go in parentheses for clarity. If subtitles are given, use a colon to separate titles from subtitles (regardless of how the title is rendered on the title page).

Schmutz, E. M., B. N. Freeman and R. E. Reed. 1968. Livestock-Poisoning Plants of Arizona. Tucson: University of Arizona Press.

Editors

Books edited by are listed after books written by the same person.

Allaby, M., ed. 1985. The Oxford Dictionary of Natural History. Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Editions

If the book is a second or later edition, add an edition statement after the title. If it is useful to cite information for earlier or later editions, cite as in the examples below.

- Arber, A. 1986. Herbals, Their Origin and Evolution: A Chapter in the History of Botany, 1470–1670, ed. 3. Cambridge, England: Cambridge University Press.

- Linnaeus, C. 1957–1959. Species Plantarum. A facsimile of the first edition. 2 vols. London: Printed for the Ray Society. (Orig. ed. 1753, Stockholm.)

Translators

- Oparin, A. I. 1953. The Origin of Life, ed. 2, transl. S. Morgulis. New York: Dover Publications.

Volumes

Add volume (and part, if appropriate) information after title. Use arabic, not roman, numerals to indicate volume or part information. Even if only one volume in a multivolume series was consulted, include date span and total number of volumes. If citing a chapter in a multivolume work, include page numbers after individual volume information.

Series

Cite books, even when they have series designations, as independent titles, not as serials (journals). For botanical and non-botanical series titles, write out the full name with volume or number designations and enclose in square brackets following the complete book citation.

- Little, E. L., Jr., R. O. Woodbury and F. H. Wadsworth. 1974. Trees of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Vol. 2. Washington. [USDA Agriculture Handbook 449.]

Citing different parts of same series in one citation

- McVaugh, Rogers. 1977–1987. Botanical results of the Sessé & Mociño Expedition (1787–1803). I. Summary of excursions and travels. II. The Icones Florae Mexicanae. III. The impact of this and other expeditions on contemporary botany in Europe. Contr. Univ. Michigan Herb. 11: 97–195; 14: 99–140; 16: 155–171.

Book reviews

Refer to citation style for books. “[Review.]” can be used in citations of book-review titles; if book review is untitled, “[Book review.]” can be used. Do not underline titles of books when they occur as part of a title of a book review; use initial caps to set book title off if embedded in a longer title.

Conference proceedings, technical reports, speeches, lectures

Refer to citation style for books. Citations for meetings and conferences are given in the format shown.

- International Conference on the Biology of Whales (2nd : 1985 : Boston).

Article citations

Abbreviate botanical journal titles according to BPH Online. For non-botanical journals, include the full name of the journal. There is no space between volume and part numbers, but there is a space following a colon before page numbers.

Smith, B. S. 1992. Lucy Bishop Millington, nineteenth-century botanist: Her life and letters to Charles Horton Peck, State Botanist of New York. Huntia 8(2): 111–153.

New series of a journal

Beddome, R. H. 1858. Extract from report on the vegetable products of the Pulney hills. Madras J. Lit. Sci., n.s. 3(5): 163-169.

Chapter citations

Both the chapter date and the book date are needed. Provide page numbers of the chapter being cited.

Thesis/Dissertation

Cite as for book but include, e.g., “Ph.D. dissertation” or “Master’s thesis.” Supply city information only if institution is a branch of a university, e.g., University of Pittsburgh, Johnstown.

Additional information

Include additional commentary about a citation in square brackets at the end.

Browne, P. 1774b. A catalogue of fishes observed on our coasts, and in our lakes and rivers, classed and disposed according to Linnaeus. Gent. Mag. 44: 515–516. [Reprinted and annotated in Nelson and Walsh, 1995, pp. 199–211.]

Unpublished Sources

In text

If an unpublished source (a manuscript or work in preparation) is cited in text, page numbers should be given only when the material is explicitly pagged. Dates for unpublished materials are not necessary, as citation dates indicate time of publication, not of composition. Provide minimum information necessary to unequivocally identify unpublished sources, which are not to be cited in references.

In references

Works “in press” or “in preparation” are cited only in text. Forthcoming journal articles are not cited in the bibliography unless the final article title, journal name, and volume and issue numbers are known. Forthcoming books are cited in the bibliography if they have been submitted to the publisher and a publication year has been set.

Unpublished materials and personal communications and observations should not be cited in a reference list unless they are in letter or manuscript form, for example, and are deposited in accessible collections. For letters, provide names of author and recipient, full date, city in which letter was written and specific location of deposit.

Figures

Specifications

Do not submit original artwork. Figures may be prints of line drawings or paintings, photographs, maps, charts or graphs. We accept digital image submissions in 300 dpi, black and white, TIFF format. Artwork is sized to either one-column (2 5/8"), one-and-a-half-column (4 3/16") or two-column (5 5/8") width; authors may express column preferences. Provide captions for figures. It may be necessary for an author to obtain permission to reproduce copyrighted material, in which case copies of signed permission agreements must be forwarded to the Institute at time of submission.

Citation

Organize text so that figures are cited in numerical order. Figure should be spelled out when it appears outside of parentheses and is always capitalized when cited, e.g., “Figures 1–3” or “Figures 1, 2” or “Figures 3, 8” or “Figures 1a, b.” When given in parentheses, Figure or Figures is abbreviated to (Fig. 1) and (Figs.). Figure is written out in the caption.

Tables

Specifications

Double-space all text. Number tables consecutively but separately from figures. Provide title; column heads should be centered over respective columns. Column text should be flush left within column. Do not use vertical or horizontal rules within tables. Any notes to table should be placed beneath table in a “Notes” section; use numbers, not letters—e.g., “1” not “a”—for each note.

Citation

Organize text so that tables are cited in numeric order. Tables are cited in the same style as figures.

Appendixes

In general, format according to style for tables; appendixes usually are placed before references in the manuscript.
